RezFlo provides AI-powered call handling and automation services for restaurants, cafes, bakeries, and service-based businesses. Depending on the setup, our services may process customer calls, inquiries, reservation requests, pickup order details, SMS messages, call recordings, transcripts, CRM records, POS/order details, and related analytics.

This Policy is intended for Canadian operations and is designed to align with common private-sector privacy principles such as accountability, identifying purposes, consent, limiting collection, safeguards, openness, access, and correction.

2. Scope

This Policy applies to personal information we collect from:

- Website visitors and demo users;
- Prospective clients and clients;
- Restaurant customers or callers whose information is processed through a client implementation;
- People who communicate with us by email, form submission, SMS, phone, social media, or calendar booking tools; and
- Users interacting with our embedded website demo voice agent.

When we process information on behalf of a client, the client may be the organization primarily responsible for its customer relationship. We act as a service provider/processor to help deliver the contracted services.

3. Personal Information We May Collect

The personal information we collect depends on how you interact with us and how a client configures the service. It may include:

- Contact details: name, business name, email address, phone number, job title, and location/city;
- Demo and sales details: booking details, Calendly or form submissions, lead source, messages, requested services, business needs, and notes from calls or meetings;
- Restaurant customer/caller details: caller name, phone number, reservation date/time, party size, pickup time, order notes, special instructions, accessibility/seating requests, event inquiry details, and similar information provided during a call;
- Call and conversation data: call recordings, transcripts, summaries, timestamps, call duration, phone number, agent interaction logs, sentiment or classification tags, and quality assurance notes;
- Order/POS-related data: menu items ordered, quantities, modifiers, order totals, pickup instructions, and order identifiers when the service is configured to send orders to a POS such as Clover;
- CRM and automation data: contact records, opportunities, pipeline stage, SMS confirmations, review request status, booking confirmations, and workflow logs;
- Technical and usage data: IP address, browser/device details, pages viewed, referral source, cookies, analytics events, session data, and website interaction data;
- Payment and billing data: subscription plan, invoices, billing contact, payment status, and limited payment details processed by payment providers. We do not intentionally store full payment card numbers unless specifically stated by a payment processor integration;
- Marketing preferences: opt-in/opt-out status, email/SMS preferences, and communication history.

4. Sensitive Information

We do not intentionally request sensitive personal information unless it is necessary for the service or voluntarily provided by a caller or user. Callers may sometimes disclose allergy, accessibility, dietary, religious, or other sensitive preferences during restaurant interactions. We use this information only to support the requested service, such as noting a reservation request, dietary note, or special accommodation request.

Clients should avoid using RezFlo to collect unnecessary sensitive information and should configure scripts and workflows to collect only what is reasonably required for the intended service.

7. Consent

We collect, use, and disclose personal information with consent or as otherwise permitted or required by law. Consent may be express, implied by your actions, or provided by a client on behalf of its users/customers where appropriate.

Clients are responsible for ensuring they have any required consents and notices for their own customers, callers, employees, and end users, including call recording notices where applicable.

You may withdraw consent where legally permitted, subject to contractual restrictions, legal requirements, and reasonable notice. Withdrawing consent may limit our ability to provide services.

8. Call Recordings, Transcripts, and AI Processing

If enabled, calls handled through RezFlo may be recorded, transcribed, summarized, analyzed, or routed through AI systems to perform tasks such as answering questions, capturing reservations, creating call summaries, and sending information to CRM or POS workflows.

Clients are responsible for deciding whether to enable recording/transcription and for providing legally appropriate notice to callers. Where a client uses RezFlo for its customers, the client should clearly disclose that calls may be handled by AI and may be recorded or transcribed if applicable.

AI-generated outputs may be inaccurate or incomplete. Clients should use reasonable human review for operationally important decisions, order processing, reservations, complaints, allergies, or any matter requiring staff confirmation.

9. Cookies, Analytics, and Advertising

Our website may use cookies, pixels, analytics tools, and similar technologies to operate the site, remember preferences, understand traffic, improve performance, and support advertising or remarketing campaigns.

These tools may collect device identifiers, IP address, browser information, page views, interactions, referral sources, and similar data. Where required, we will obtain consent or provide opt-out options. You can also manage cookies through your browser settings.

10. Marketing Communications and SMS

We may send emails, SMS messages, or other electronic communications for demos, service updates, confirmations, review requests, and marketing where permitted by law. Each message may include required identification information and an unsubscribe mechanism where legally required.

Clients using RezFlo to send SMS confirmations, reminders, review requests, or marketing messages are responsible for ensuring their own compliance with consent, identification, unsubscribe, and recordkeeping obligations.

We require service providers to protect personal information appropriately and use it only for authorized purposes. However, their services may be subject to their own privacy terms and security practices.

12. International Storage and Processing

Information processed outside Canada may be accessible to courts, law enforcement, or government authorities in those jurisdictions according to local laws.

We retain personal information only as long as reasonably necessary for the purposes described in this Policy, to provide the services, to resolve disputes, maintain records, comply with legal obligations, enforce agreements, and support security and quality assurance.

Retention periods vary depending on the type of data, client configuration, legal requirements, and operational needs. Clients may request deletion or export of data subject to the service agreement, technical limits, backups, legal obligations, and third-party platform constraints.

14. Security

We use administrative, technical, and physical safeguards appropriate to the sensitivity of the information, which may include access controls, secure credentials, restricted system access, encryption in transit where available, workflow controls, monitoring, and vendor management.

No system is completely secure. Clients must also safeguard their own accounts, API keys, connected systems, POS credentials, CRM access, and internal staff permissions.

15. Accuracy and Updates

We take reasonable steps to keep personal information accurate and up to date for the purposes for which it is used. Users and clients should provide accurate information and notify us if corrections are needed.

16. Access, Correction, Deletion, and Privacy Requests

Subject to applicable law and identity verification, you may request access to, correction of, or deletion of your personal information. You may also ask questions about how we handle personal information.
